

Camel

YOU smoke some Camel Cigarettes, because they give a brand-new idea of how delightful a cigarette can be freed from tongue-bite, throat-parch and any unpleasant cigarette after-taste.

Camels are delightful, because they are blended choice Turkish and choice domestic tobaccos. You'll like them better than either kind smoked straight, they're so smooth and fragrant and refreshing.

Camels are so expensive no coupons or premiums are offered smokers, who appreciate quality and do not expect them.

Start today to compare Camels with any cigarette in the world!

SARAJEVO, always one of the most fruitful breeding places in Europe of conspiracies and revolts, first against the Turks and then against the Austrians, and the scene of the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir-apparent to the thrones of Austria and Hungary, and his wife, the duchess of Hohenberg, is thus described by a writer for the National Geographic society:

One of the beauty spots of the Balkans is that occupied by the Bosnian capital, Sarajevo. It is built upon the River Miljacka, a small tributary of the Bosna, and spreads over both slopes of the narrow valley to the rugged hills. Partially oriental, and wholly set in the green and emerald of its gardens and neighboring well-wooded hills, Sarajevo is frequently called the "Damascus of the North."

The city lies in the southeastern corner of Bosnia, 122 miles southwest of Belgrade. With a growing population of 50,000, and a thriving commerce and industry, it has been fast losing its eastern character, reconstructing the old Turkish city to conform to the purposes of western progress.

Sarajevo is an important commercial center for Bosnia, Herzegovina, Dalmatia and Montenegro. Its large bazaar is a favorite market place for the peasants of the whole province, while its commission houses conduct the exchange of Bosnian agricultural and mineral products with the manufacturers of other parts of the empire. It has potteries, silk mills, a tobacco factory, and a large individual, or house industry, which produces fine embroideries, rugs, embossed and filigree work.

Sarajevo was founded in 1262 by the Hungarian, General Cotroman, and was enlarged by the Turks and selected for their administrative Bosnian headquarters. Following the Austrian occupation of 1878, it was largely rebuilt and has been steadily increasing in prosperity. Its inhabitants are mostly Serbo-Croats.

Bosnia a Fertile Land. Bosnia is a land of wooded mountains and fertile valleys. There is very little unproductive land within its confines, for what is not in grain, fruit, or meadow cultivation is pasture land and forest. Moreover, Bosnia is rich in minerals, which include coal, iron, copper, chrome, manganese, zinc, and mercury. Gold and silver were worked among its mountains by the Romans, and, in those days, it was celebrated for its richness in these precious metals. It has, also, valuable salt mines and marble quarries.

This province, however, is chiefly agricultural. More than 90 per cent of the population is engaged in farming the country according to the most antiquated of methods. Much of the fruitful land remains uncultivated. The chief European cereals and fruits are raised. Tobacco is one of Bosnia's best-known products, and many discriminating smokers in all parts of the world insist upon the Bosnian leaf. This tobacco, however, does not compare in richness with the product of American, Cuban or Australasian fields. It has a pale, yellow leaf, and has a spicy fragrance similar to that of burning autumn leaves. Dried plums and tobacco are two important items of the export.

The province has an area of 15,170 square miles, and a population of nearly 2,000,000. This population is but little mixed. There is a sprinkling of Austrians and Hungarians, mostly officials; gypsies, Italians and Jews. The Jews speak Spanish and are the descendants of those who fled in the sixteenth century from Spain to escape the Inquisition.

Something About Herzegovina. Herzegovina is a continuation of the Montenegro mountains. It has an area of 3,530 square miles, or, added to Montenegro, would about double that tiny kingdom's territory. It would also bring 200,000 more persons under the scepter of King Nicholas. Montenegrin statistics make one realize what a prize Herzegovina would be. Montenegro has an area of 5,650 square miles and a population of 520,000.

Herzegovina joins Montenegro in south and Bosnia in the north. The mountain formations of Bosnia and Herzegovina are similar, but the latter land is not so fertile as its larger neighbor. There is a saying that "Bosnia begins with the forest, Herzegovina with the rock." Here, however, may be enjoyed some of the most beautiful scenery of Europe, and there are numberless choice Herzegovinian sites that in the future may be developed into famous and well-paying seasonal resorts.

A large part of the land is barren, having a number of bare peaks rising more than 7,000 feet. The eastern part, toward Serbia, is especially barren and rocky. The rivers of Herzegovina plunge underground for great stretches on their courses to the sea. There is just one river in this province that manages to go its whole journey without once forsaking the surface. The valleys are the only fertile parts of the province, and most of these are very narrow. Grapes of fine quality are raised in them, and fairly good native wines are produced. Excellent tobacco is grown; that is, it is considered excellent by those who prefer tobacco as fragrant as cloves and cinnamon.

Mostar, the capital of Herzegovina, is a picture city, a fascinating oriental town in a setting of wonderful beauty. Sheer, massive cliffs inclose it on one side, while distant mountains divide the valley on the other. Mostar has a population of about 15,000, almost entirely Slavonic. Islam, however, shares about equally with Roman Catholicism the religious converts. The mountaineers of Herzegovina are like their neighbors, the Montenegrins, in their sturdy independence. It was they who started the rebellion against the Turks in 1875, which, spreading throughout the Balkans and finally being taken up by Russia, led finally to the congress of Berlin and the birth of several new states into the family of nations.

Living Honestly. The root of honesty is an honest intention, the distinct and deliberate purpose to be true, to handle facts as they are, and not as we wish them to be. Facts lend themselves to manipulation. Many a butcher's hand is worth more than its weight in gold. What we want things to be we come to see them to be; and the tailor pulls the coat and the truth into a perfect fit from his point of view. Oh, to get life out of our sinful and selfish desires, and "walk in the light as he is in the light," not wishing merely, but "willing to live honestly."—Malbie D. Babcock.

Traveling Man's Experience.
"In the summer of 1888 I had a very severe attack of cholera morbus. Two physicians worked over me from four a. m. to 6 p. m. without giving me any relief and then told me they did not expect me to live; that I had best telegraph for my family. Instead of doing so, I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and take no substitute. I took a double dose according to directions and went to sleep after the second dose. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping point, a well man, but feeling rather shaky from the severity of the attack."
